

Seeing Yourself From a Child's Perspective

	Yes! Kudos to my teachers!	Not really, but I would like it.
I am greeted with smiling faces and welcomed by name.
My teachers are happy and talking to my mom or dad. They even know their names!
My classroom smells good.
I have my own space with my name on it for all of my own things.
There are nice decorations, but not so much that I have anxiety.
I like the music that is playing, and it's not too loud.
Different areas are set up for me to play in.
I can walk around my classroom safely.
I can reach lots of things all by myself.
There is a place to dress up and pretend.
I see plenty of trucks and toys with wheels.
I can build and engineer with all the blocks I see.
There is a place for me to draw and paint.
Look at all the toys to play with at the table!
There's a place for me to dig, discover, and play with different textures.
I like the big rug that all my friends and I can sit on together with our teachers.
I see lots of words and pictures everywhere.
There are pictures of me, my friends, and other families.
I see a comfy place I can go to just relax, be alone, look at a book, or sit quietly.

Source: Responding to Behavior: Winning Ways for Early Childhood Professionals written by Gigi Schweikert with Jeniece Decker and Jennifer Romanoff. Pg. 19

Revised 11/20